

A FUNERAL FIT FOR 'DA KING'

THUS, if this is not the growth and tenderness of Mark's North Country as they wait for their "king" to arrive at his final destination,

THE WIDOW finally lets go of all that is in her heart in hushed hours of Wednesday morning after the funeral Mass at the Sts. Dominic Church.

THE FBI wants you to make your own mark on the world. It's a badge of honor to be a part of the FBI. It's a badge of honor to be a part of the FBI. It's a badge of honor to be a part of the FBI.

Yuletide sailing for marine ecology

By Juan Benavent Jr.
Agencies, 1 January 07

ALARMED by the fast-declining state of marine life in Laguna Gulf, government officials of Camarines Sur have launched a campaign to protect the second largest body of water in the country.

Dubbed "Doko sa Dagat" (Christmas at Sea), the drive launched on Dec. 24 involved lawmakers and area small agencies in various outdoor activities that highlighted the importance of balance between the sea and land. The campaign, centered on areas of 3,071 square kilometers, is for the water body is choking with problems of uncontrolled cutting of mangrove trees, illegal fishing, and pollution from industrial companies.

A Bureau of Fisheries and Aquaculture Department report said that only 353 hectares of the gulf, or 20 percent of its total mangrove area of 1,780 hectares, remain. The total loss of its water areas has considerably decreased. The mangrove beds are also said to have been disturbed or cleared as a result of the construction of roads and modern facilities.

Justina Infila, West Samar regional director, said the "Doko sa Dagat" and environmentally challenging gulf was featured by 73 routes in three provinces, covering 105 villages, some 7,500-hectare coastline, divided into 16 sub-landed, she said.

The BIRAL local government coalition management organization had taken initiative since the early 1990s to protect coastal resources. "Doko sa Dagat" is a campaign that addressed the ecological and environmental problems of the Laguna Gulf, Infila said.

The survey of sustainable use and ecological preservation, an initiative aiming not taking profits at all over the country the said.

Important step

The "Doko sa Dagat" campaign is also being used to develop coastal communities by encouraging divers to deliver their interest to save the long-term efforts to the environment and the people's livelihood, Infila explained.

Through it, a government unit can realize the goal of saving people's attention on the need to participate in restoring the coastal and marine resources, she said.

His coastal towns, represented by some 4,000 individuals and several agencies, joined the link of programs in Laguna Island in Laguna.

Gov. Luis Ronald Hilario said the "Doko sa Dagat" initiative is a step towards a sustainable approach to achieve a new vision of marine ecological management of LGUs along the gulf.

"We intend to further advance our fishery management and practices among the fisherfolk themselves and encourage the LGUs to ensure the protection of coastal resources of marine resources in a sustainable way," Hilario said.

The "Doko sa Dagat" initiative is the participation of the sea vessel operators as they may act as guardians of their marine environment in order to enhance marine efforts to the sea.

The campaign areas from December 20 to 26, which the provincial board approved in 2001.

Typhoons won't stop bishop's 'simbang gabi'

By Ricardo O. Pantoja

Iloilo, Iloilo

DESPITE the spate of typhoons that struck northern Luzon and across last month, the "simbang gabi" (Luzon Masses) continues to be an annual tradition for devotees who flock to churches deep in the Court junks libel case vs ABS

THE JUDICIAL City Prosecutor's Office has dismissed ABS-CBN's libel case against ABS-CBN for "lack of probable cause." In a Dec. 7 decision, Justice Ochoa of the First Division ruled that the evidence presented by ABS-CBN was insufficient to sustain the charges. The libel charges were prompted by ABS-CBN's 2004-2005 "Galing Kabisote" (Galing Talino and Lynda Aguinaldo's reports when they said GMA-7 had committed a violation which cost the rights of its first franchisee of ABS-CBN).

The prosecutor's decision means that the "Galing Kabisote" case is now dead. It was mentioned by Talino and Aguinaldo, but not by the defendant's lawyer.

Neda says economy grew 6.1% in '04

By Marlene Y. Ramos

THE NATIONAL Economic and Development Authority said the country's economy grew 6.1 percent last 2004, beating most forecasts including the government's original target of 4.9-5.3 percent.

According to National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) president Nene T. Pineda, the country's economic growth was largely due to the strong performance of the services sector, which was estimated to have grown by 7.7 percent for the year.

The growth of the services sector was partly attributed to the strengthening of investments related to business process outsourcing (BPO), which covers services outsourced by call centers. The NEDA said the country would be looking on the strength of the sector next year to compensate for a possible slowdown in the output of the electronics industry due to the production of electronic goods.

Construction and the agricultural sector likely expanded by 5-6 percent this year, while the industry sector grew by 4.4 percent.

"With these figures, our projections for the full year is that GDP growth will be 6.1 percent," Pineda said.

Government said GDP growth for the fourth quarter dipped to below 5 percent. The reason is because the services sector production of the agriculture sector, which accounts for a 50% of the economy, were partly to blame for the downturn.

The fourth-quarter growth rate was lower than the 6.4 percent, 6.6 percent, and 6.7 percent recorded in the first three quarters of 2004.

The National Statistics Council, which said GDP growth for the fourth quarter would likely be cut by 0.5 percentage points in the fourth quarter because of the effects of typhoons Onding, Yolanda, and Doyang.

According to the Department of Agriculture, some 72.7 billion worth of palm, rice, coconut and other agricultural and fishery products were destroyed by the typhoons in November and early December, the NEDA said. The damage was equivalent to 1.7 percentage points of the output of the agriculture, fishery and forestry (AFF) sector in the fourth quarter.

Power shortage seen in Mindanao in mid-2005

By Angel L. Pio

WITH the El Niño weather phenomenon accompanying again next year, Mindanao residents may be in for rotating blackouts if no new projects are added to the main grid.

Ramon Alapa, chief of operations of the power and light Co. (Tampulid), explained that the state grid's heavy dependence on hydropower for its electricity needs may be a disadvantage in times of drought.

Three years ago, he said the April-June period would prove critical for the state grid as the water level in the main grid would be low.

Below critical levels, he said the Agri-plant would not be able to run, resulting in a power supply shortage. The lack of power supply would then give rise to long lines for electricity, which would hurt the Mindanao economy.

In present, he said the Mindanao grid's power source was already very low. The supply demand gap, including reserves, would be a very thin margin of 10 megawatts (MW) by March next year.

The lack of power supply would then give rise to long lines for electricity, which would hurt the Mindanao economy.

In present, he said the Mindanao grid's power source was already very low. The supply demand gap, including reserves, would be a very thin margin of 10 megawatts (MW) by March next year.

Is it possible to have a Noche Buena consisting of only organic food? If you're Maria Perla de Zamora, it is.

Living traditional and natural, this Chinese wife to no problem for the impossible has helped the organic market, which she has been supporting for 11 years now. Maria is also in the group that's attempting to promote the Green Food Movement, an advocacy that first took root in Europe to counter the fast-food culture.

Lifestyle activist Maria is teaming up with a Chinese approach to organic food—chemical-free ingredients. Not only is her menu filling and nutritious, it's beautiful, too.

Familiarize Tea

Simply take pandan leaves (1 leaf to good for 2 cups) and boil with filtered, mineral water in a stainless-steel pot for about 5 minutes on low flame. Let cool for 2 minutes then sweeten with muscovado sugar (1/2 cup per cup).

Tata Kintlaw served with Tabbou Salad

Tata kintlaw, cut off excess water with unbleached paper towels. Place tata in frying pan, fry in 1/2 cup oil (or use olive oil) on low flame to avoid burning (tata is sensitive to heat). Let dry on paper towel cloth for 10 minutes. Add muscovado sugar (1/2 cup per cup) and green, then 1 cup of water for 10 minutes.

Controversy turns café into catering business

COCTAIL at the CCF

MOB and Montage Vegetables would have opened Constantine Café at the downtown end of the new Transitway. The first of the many Agri-Entrepreneurial Agri's.

But with the controversy surrounding the project, including the fact that the project was not going to be a public domain, the project was not going to be a public domain.

Editor's note: The following is the fourth column in the series "Can women be more amazing than when they pursue the craft of cooking with passion and without compromise?"

By Christine Wang

It's a beautiful day, and the sun is shining. The sun is shining. The sun is shining.

Perhaps the sun is shining. The sun is shining. The sun is shining.

As a child of three I had watched my mother work in her little kitchen in Hong Kong.

With a smile and a sense of joy, she would work with her hands, and she would work with her hands.

With a smile and a sense of joy, she would work with her hands, and she would work with her hands.

With a smile and a sense of joy, she would work with her hands, and she would work with her hands.

With a smile and a sense of joy, she would work with her hands, and she would work with her hands.

With a smile and a sense of joy, she would work with her hands, and she would work with her hands.

With a smile and a sense of joy, she would work with her hands, and she would work with her hands.

Can women be more amazing than when they pursue the craft of cooking with passion and without compromise?

With a smile and a sense of joy, she would work with her hands, and she would work with her hands.

With a smile and a sense of joy, she would work with her hands, and she would work with her hands.

With a smile and a sense of joy, she would work with her hands, and she would work with her hands.

With a smile and a sense of joy, she would work with her hands, and she would work with her hands.
